Zipco Contracting Relocates to Hunt Midwest Commerce Center New location improves access and accommodates growth

KANSAS CITY, Mo – June 8, 2009 – Zipco Contracting (www.zipcocontracting.com) has recently opened a new 13,000 SF facility at 4110 N. Corrington in the Hunt Midwest Commerce Center. The general contracting company purchased two acres of land near Parvin Road and I-435 in the fall of 2008.

“We outgrew our building in North Kansas City and needed to find a new location,” said Terry Zipsie, owner and president of Zipco Contracting. “Our new location in the Hunt Midwest Commerce Center increases our visibility and provides easy access for our employees and subcontractors.”

Founded in 2004, Zipco serves clients from the commercial real estate industry, property management firms, colleges, school districts, national retail chains, boutique retail shops, and indoor and outdoor malls. More recently, Zipco has been involved with projects in the health care community, providing tenant finish for hospitals and medical office buildings.

The company has 25 employees and works with a network of quality-minded subcontractors. Zipsie said that business is up over last year and he looks forward to a strong 2010.

“We are delighted that Zipco Contracting chose to relocate to the Hunt Midwest Commerce Center,” said Dick Ringer, assistant general manager of Hunt Midwest. “As a growing business, their presence here demonstrates the advantages of this Northland location, and the importance of visibility from I-435.”
